NO OLD LADIES IN FRANCE.

A Paris correspondent says: "A fallacy which I hear discussed is that good manners are disappearing because men, now never see old ladies. This is indeed a most absurd theory. First of all there are no old ladies left. It is only the day after their decease that we learn of the existence of old ladies in France. Up to the moment when they are stretched upon their last bed they maintain a vigorous battle against old age. They simper, they cover their shoulders with powder, paint their veins blue and their eyebrows black, dye their hair, fill their mouths with ivory, color their lips, carmine their nails and ears pink; while there is lace on their corsage, diamonds on their necks, tulle and flowers on their petticoats; their figures are mechanically adjusted, their feet are enclosed in vises and their hands in prisons of kid; they fill up their wrinkles with enamel and allow a whole world of false hair and gauze to fall over their necks—in short they deceive themselves so much with this artificial attire that when they look at themselves in a glass without thinking, they do not know themselves and courtesy after the ceremonious fashion of a visit. It is impossible then to be deferential to old ladies in society, because they no longer exist. The only old ladies to be met are those whom one sees kneeling in the churches of the Faubourg; on confession nights, when they weep for the sins of others, or coming out at night from the porch of St. Clothilde, where they have had their first nap while pretending to listen to a preacher."

DISAPPEARANCE OF THE OAKS.

Oak timber is rapidly disappearing from Europe, although half the area of Sweden, one fourth that of Norway, one sixth that of Switzerland and 780,000 square miles in European Russia are said to be yet in forest. The consumption of oak in France has doubled during the last fifty years; she requires 15,000,000 cubic feet yearly for wine casks alone, 750,000 cubic feet for building purposes, 600,000 cubic feet for fuel, and 150,000 cubic feet for railway cars; 2,000,000 worth of staves were imported in 1826; £5,000,000 worth are now needed. Since losing Alsace and Lorraine, France contains 150,000,000 trees; 20,000,000 of this surface is covered with nest. In Norway, the Administration of Forests declares that it is necessary to stop the cutting of timber. And and Belgium are nearly denuded of timber, and are large importers. North Germany is rich in forest, but within half a century has begun to cut down young trees. Austria has sold her forests, since railways have been introduced. In Italy the forests remain. Spain and Greece are almost woodless. The southern coasts of the Mediterranean are almost treeless. Wood, for all purposes of construction, is becoming scarcer and dearer in all parts of the United States yearly. In the Dominion of Canada it is yet abundant, though rather farther to seek.

A NEW STORY OF THE CREATION.

Mr. George Smith has written a letter to the London Telegraph, concerning his efforts to read the cuneiform tablets which were procured in Assyria and deposited in the British Museum. The tablets contain the Babylonian account of the creation and fall of man, and thus, at this comparatively late day of the world, their record comes either to strengthen or to weaken the Mosaic history, as recorded in the Bible, of the same great events. Mr. Smith, after giving an account of the discovery of the tablets, says that when complete they must have ten thousand lines or ten, and that the history as recorded on them of what occurred "in the beginning" was much and higher than the corresponding report in longer the Book of Genesis. He concludes as follows:

"The narrative on the Assyrian tablets commences with a description of the period before the world was formed, when there existed a chaos of confusion. The desolate and empty state of the universe and the generation by chaos of monsters are vividly given. The chaos is presided over by a female power named Tsalat and Tiamat, corresponding to the Thalatth of Berosus; but, as the records, the Assyrian account agrees rather with the Bible than with the short account from Berosus. We are told, in the inscriptions, of the fall of the celestial being who appears to correspond to Satan. In his ambition he raises his hand against the sanctuary of the God of heaven, and the description of him is really magnificent. He is represented riding in a chariot through celestial space, surrounded by the storms, with the lightning playing before him, and wielding a thunderbolt as a weapon. This rebellion leads to a war in heaven and the conquest of the powers of evil, the gods in due course creating the universe in stages, as in the Mosaic narrative, surveying each step of the work and pronouncing it good.

"The divine work culminates in the creation of man, who is made upright and free from evil, and endowed by the gods with the noble faculty of speech. The Deity then delivers a long address to the newly created being, instructing him in his duties and privileges, and pointing out the glory of his state. But this condition of blessing does not last long before man, yielding to temptation, falls; and the Deity then pronounces upon him a terrible curse, invoking on his head all the evils which have since afflicted humanity."

AMERICAN VERSUS FRENCH THRIFT.

A contemporary, echoing the current charges of extravagance among the American people, compares us with the thrifty Frenchmen. In France, we are told, "the class of artisans and small farmers are the richest in the world. France always has money, even in her wars; and the reason is the frugality and prudence of Frenchmen in moderate circumstances." Now, the real reason why France has money for her war debt we have pointed out before. It is because the French working class have distrusted banks of all kinds, and hoard their savings, whereas, with us the entire savings of the people are loaned to banks or other institutions. Being always loaned, they cannot be employed in emergencies like that recently occurring in France, and, if withdrawn from the banks in response to governmental demand, would very seriously disturb the entire financial and industrial interests of the country. The savings-banks of the city of New York alone hold one hundred and ninety five million dollars, which gives an average of accumulated reserve of one hundred and ninety-five dollars for every man, woman, and child in the community. We are yet to see statistics that will show a better average of savings among the French or any other people. Not only the savings banks but the life-insurance companies absorb an immense aggregate of the people's savings, which in France seek no such investment. We do not know the aggregate assets of the Life companies, but they must be immense, as those of two companies alone are nearly one hundred million dollars. These assets are very largely composed of savings, of sums paid in by people frugally providing for their families, or, as in endowment cases, for old age. In fact, no country in the world has an exhibit like ours of so many institutions organized for frugal purposes, and as a means of accumulating something for the future. The Frenchman will trust nothing but his old stocking or china teapot, in which his slowly-accumulated savings are hidden; whereas the American is eager to put his savings where they will draw interest. Not only the funds of savings-banks and life-insurance companies are swollen by his contributions, but government bonds, railroad bonds, fire-insurance stock, all represent in part the savings of the people. We shall not know whether the "artisans and small farmers" of France are richer than those of America until we have an accurate analysis of all the funds we have enumerated, with a corresponding exhibit of the accumulations of the same class in France. The prompt payment of the French war debt is a standing fact, as we have repeatedly explained before.—Appletons' Journal.

"OLD PROBABILITIES."

We have accidentally heard a little practical testimony in favor of the value of the Signal Service Bureau from towns on the Ashtabula, Youngstown, and Pittsburgh Railway. During the Winter they have regulated their force according to Old Prob's predictions, and up to recent date these predictions have always been fulfilled, and not a single disarrangement of their time-table has occurred this Winter. At one time, when a severe storm was announced, they placed fifteen additional men on the road. The storm came as advised, but found them prepared for it, and no delays or dangers were necessitated. Of course the one is a short one, but such testimony, in addition to all that has been given before, is a strong argument against the wanton discontinuance of what has proved so great a blessing.—Akron Argus.

A FRIGHTFUL FALL.

A recent publication gives the following curious and hitherto unknown particulars of Lablache's début. Lablache's début was marked by an adventure that might have ended fatally, and, indeed, in a fashion so impressed the greatest of bass singers as being absolutely supernatural and miraculous, that he made public offerings to the shrine of a popular Madonna, which are still shown in Naples. His first appearance on any stage occurred just after the congress of Leybach, and the King of Naples had but then returned to his dominions after an absence of some years. Magnificent fetes were organized in his honor, and, amongst others, a pageant was arranged at the St. Carlo Theatre, in which young Lablache was to appear as Jupiter, a part for which he was well fitted, both on account of his fine presence and rich and powerful bass voice. He was to descend from Olympus on a bank of clouds, holding an ivory sceptre in his hand, and wearing a golden diadem in his flowing black hair. Thunder announced his coming, and flashes of lightning preceded him. But suddenly a frightful screaming was heard. The king rose in horror, the queen fainted, ladies cried out in terror, and men rushed to the stage to avert, if possible, the appalling accident which menaced the new singer. The cloud had not descended ten feet, ere the machinery gave way, and Jupiter fell through. Fortunately, however, a strong iron wire, or rope, caught in his cloak, and his weight made it unroll, so that it let him down by degrees unhurt to the ground. But the most awful spectacle greeted him all the while he was descending. One of the workmen had also fallen through when the accident took place, and he fell upon a strong iron spike supporting the scenery; and which pierced him straight through the body. Now it so happened that the wire which saved Lablache in some way or other got entangled in the feet of this poor wretch, so that every movement made by Lablache told upon the unhappy creature on the spike, and he was driven down right under him, howling and screaming in the most appalling manner, whilst his blood spurted all over the great basso. When the two got reach land Lablache's hair (it is say) was perfectly white, and the workman dead. They had taken between ten and fifteen minutes to get down, the audience, meanwhile, looking on in a state of terror easier imagined than described. The King of Naples, imitating Sotus Avitus on a similar occasion, had the courage, at a very early period of the adventure, to cry out, "If I hear any one scream or shout again, I'll mark that person and have him shot." This order silenced the people, and of course prevented the singer from losing his presence of mind. Once safe, Lablache knelt down and prayed—an act greatly admired by the audience, which presently rose and left the theatre. Lablache's hair remained white, and the contrast of his youthful face and venerable looking hair was as charming as it was singular.

SPELLING BEES.

Spelling and "Spelling Bees" are becoming the topics of the time, and the special evening amusements of the social circles. You hear of them in the parlor, the sitting-room, the work-shop, the school room, the vestry room, the office, and on the street. There is a general overhauling of big dictionaries. People of all ages are poring or puzzling each other with strange words; and if one chances to use a polysyllable word in conversation he is immediately brought to a stand by a challenge to "spell it." The unwary talker is beset by innumerable orthographic pitfalls. Accounts of the doings and of the fun at "spelling bees," and of the blank consternation which mantles over the countenance of a "good speller," when he encounters and falls under a "head-spell," are coming to us from all quarters, by mail, through our exchanges, and over the wires of the telegraph. All of this is wholesome. The spelling matches, while they afford an a most unlimited field of diversion, are instructive in more ways than one. They have, at the same time, the tendency to improve the quality of popular orthography, and to teach some lessons calculated to abate an overwhelming self-esteem. Quite a number of fairly accomplished people, who had no doubt whatever of their ability to spell correctly any and all words in general use, and most of the orthodox un-technical words that are not in very frequent use, have found that they have been in the habit of spelling them in ways not authorized by any modern dictionary; and some others, who, without other ground than an unwarranted self-conceit, fancied themselves to be infallible spellers, have, to their amazement, found themselves brought down at the first fire of the pedagogue, by words of very common use.

And this brings us to the consideration of a few general principles which, it seems to us, should govern a trials of spelling wherein a principal purpose is use ulness as well as diversion. First, there is nothing better settled than that the English language, as written and spoken in the United States, has no settled standard, either of spelling, or pronunciation, in respect of a considerable number of words in frequent use. Hence no one dictionary can be assumed to be the only standard. There are accomplished people still in the prime of life whose school days were over before the latest among the American dictionaries of the English language waxed warm and fierce, and when neither Webster nor Worcester had displaced the modernized editions of Walker. Many of these are as good spellers as are to be found at the "Big Bees," held in public. Fairness then, as well as justice on general principles, requires that in a set contest, every word that is spelled correctly, according to Webster or Worcester or Walker, shall be so adjudged. The adoption of this simple and just principle as a rule would get rid of all the difficulties encountered in trying to exclude words which have more than one spelling; and it would, besides, prevent numerous disputes and complaints. The same considerations hold good as to varying pronunciation. If the word as pronounced is not understood, and it has more than one allowable pronunciation, all should be given. And whenever words as pronounced fail from any cause to strike the ear of the speller with sufficient distinctness to enable them to clearly identify such words, there should be a fair description of the words meant, either by definition or example, or otherwise the contestants are required to guess the orthography of meaningless sounds.

To the foregoing we may add this fine observation. Proficiency in correct spelling is most fairly tested by "giving out" such words only as are in the general literature produced by cultivated writers to be read by people of general culture. The adoption of this principle would exclude words that are purely technical, foreign words, which are not yet completely incorporated into American-English, unfamiliar proper names of places and places, and words not rarely used, as well as those which are altogether obsolete. No persons of general accomplishment in the literature of the English language are expected, or should be expected to load their memories with the precise orthography of such words.—Philadelphia Press.

A Detroit man has taken to raising lemons in a hot-house. This year's crop amounted to five lemons, and it only cost him four tons of coal to raise them.

Probable order.

"DAN."

You see, the people at the post office soon recognize faces and names, and after a man or woman has appeared at the general delivery window three or four times they are pretty well known. It is real pleasure to hand out letters to some, while the clerks care very little for the calls of others to get hold of their epistles.

One day, a year or two ago, a funny looking little old woman, wearing faded garments, but having a jolly look and a motherly face, appeared at the window and asked for a letter. There was one for her, sent from a distant city, and anyone could have told that an unlearned boy directed the envelope. There was a funny "A" in "Detroit," with a big "T" at the end of the word, and it seemed wonderful that the letter ever reached its destination.

The old lady felt so good that, with tears in her eyes and yet trying hard to smile, she put her head into the window and said:

"Thanks! It's from my boy, Dan, and you don't know how much good it does me."

The lady clerk rose up to look after the old woman, and when a second letter came she was looking and watching for the number a whole day before the letter was passed out.

"It's from my little Dan again," cried the old woman as she noted the superscription. "He's in Buffalo, learning a trade. He's only a big old boy, and there wasn't a show for him in Detroit, and beside he was running off nights, and going to the bad. I sent him away, and he's working hard and trying to be good. God bless my Dan! I'm a lone woman with only him to love, and I hope he'll be good."

"I hope so, too," added the clerk, and after that the two were friends. Sometimes the letters were far between, and when the old woman would worry over the delay and the big cities would fall, the lady would almost shed tears with her. "Mother" would open her letter at the window, and if Dan was feeling brave heart ed and getting along well both would rejoice, while both would sail be anxious if he complained and was anxious.

Almost every week for a year and a half the old lady received a letter, and just as regularly she came to post an answer. She wrote in a quaint old hand, but the boy could make out every word, and once when he wrote that her writing was improving she felt all the pride which a school girl could have shown. He improved as well. By and by he wrote "Detroit" plain and fair, and he took extra pains to commence his "Dear Mother" with a grand flourish, and to add something extra after the words "Your son, Dan."

Those letters were food and drink to the old lady, and she seemed actually to grow younger. Little Dan had many friends in the post-office, and had the mother been ill any carrier would have hunted till midnight to find her and hand her the looked for letter. Three or four weeks ago, when she opened her letter she wept and smiled as river the first. Dan wrote that he was coming home for a week, and her heart was full. She said she'd have the cottage looking like new for him, and she'd be at the door to welcome him first of all. Everybody felt good with her, and the lady clerk was to go up some evening and have tea with her and see little Dan and praise and encourage him, for the more kind words a boy can have the better will he seek to do.

There was no letter the next Tuesday, and the two excused its absence by saying that Dan was getting ready to come home. That was early in February, and he was to come about the first of March. The next Tuesday there was a letter, but the handwriting was not like Dan's. It was a strange, business hand, and the clerk felt a chill go over her as she turned it over. It might be good news, but she feared not. "Mother" came in at the regular hour, and she turned pale as she took the envelope. Her fingers trembled as she opened it, and she had to wipe the mist out of her eyes before she could decipher a word. She hadn't read over four or five lines when she uttered a moan and sank right down, like one crushed by some awful weight. They lifted her up and took her home, the letter clasped in her stiff fingers, and though she came out of the faint after a while, her heart was broken, and in a week she was in her grave.

Dan was dead! The letter said that he had been taken suddenly ill, and that nothing could save him. The brown was too heavy for one with her gray hairs and broken heart, and her little old cottage is without a tenant.

No more letters commencing "Dear Mother" come for the dead, and the trembling hands which used to linger over the words, "My dear boy, Dan," are at rest over a lonely breast, there to rest until the angels wake up them.—Detroit Free Press.

Garibaldi lives in a modest one-story house in Rome, the ground floor of which is used as a species of wine shop. It was his particular desire to live near the city gate by which the troops captured Rome, and which was battered down by the cannon of free Italy.

Mrs. Fawcett, the brilliant English lady, who writes stories of political economy and makes them so fascinating that children cry for them almost, has recently given a lecture on some of the woman characters of Dickens, Thackeray, and George Eliot.

Charles W. Hutchinson, because of his resemblance to Louis Napoleon, has been elected mayor of Utica, New York. It was upon encountering Mr. Hutchinson once in the corridor of the parliament buildings, London, that the ex-Empress Eugenie fainted away and had to be carried out in the arms of Mr. Disraeli.

Miss Ingelow, it is stated, is a native of Boston, in England, and passed her early life amid the quiet surroundings and associations of the English girl. She is now about forty-five years of age, and lives with her widowed mother, in a retired part of London, "in a quiet street," as she has said, "where all the houses are with window boxes full of flowers."

The sudden death, of the French Duchess of Omalia is chronicled in the newspapers, though no particulars are given regarding the character of the nobleman who, it seems, was an ornament to the society in which he moved. The Duchess left one only three months old, a vigorous infant, promising well, though totally neglected by his father, the Fourteenth Duke of Omalia, who is reported to be a confirmed toper. The Duchess died in this country, where she has resided for a number of years.

The children of men distinguished in New England literature and philosophy seem to take to art, either literary, fine arts, or practically as professions. Mr. Longfellow's son paints pictures, and so does Mr. Whittier's daughter May. Mr. Charles Norton, son of Cambridge Professor Norton, is an accomplished critic, as we learn from lectures. But we never hear that Mr. D. A. Wasson's son, a youth of nineteen, who has recently sailed for Germany, is a very promising painter.

A Washington correspondent tells a nice little story about Mrs. General Crook, who recently passed some weeks at Colorado Springs, very desirous of having her husband transferred from Arizona, where the climate is trying on his health, to Dakota. The correspondent, President was present when Mrs. Crook, when she venture upon the subject, her husband. The President answered that General Crook would not allow anyone to be exchanged to any other place. "He says he is with his wife, and wherever his wife is with him, he is perfectly contented." Mrs. Crook was a Miss Dade, of Winchester, Virginia, and was captain by her husband after the celebrated battle of Winchester. She is very handsome and sprightly, and, it is said, by her manner the President, by telling him that "Crook was a great General than he or Sherman or Sheridan," and, "I only ask Dan to do what he thinks best for me, and after ten years of Arizona it should have failed with the sun." The President got even with her, as the correspondent says, when she asked, "Am I really to take Dan's orders through the Indian country?" "Why, my husband?" "No," he said. "I am going to send General Crook to Alaska, and you can go with him at San Francisco." Mrs. Crook has had some happy years with her husband, and as part of his duty to [illegible] has never needed reconstruction.

A Hoboken woman remarked to a friend, a few days ago, "I don't feel very well this morning. I am hope I am not going to have a spell of sickness, for I [illegible] feel so tired."

An Iowa circus agent, who wants to use a new lion in his show, has got it as near in the sugar-coated form to see the circus and signal out. The lion, however, seems to be discharge.

"Why is it," asks an exchange, "that nearly every Senator's wife in Washington is a handsome woman?" Perhaps because every Senator's wife who is not a handsome woman is left at home.

A girl screamed on a second mortgage in Lafayette, Oregon. Then all the other girls screamed. General confusion ensued, and a rush for the doors. People were trodden, clothes torn, and the room at length was emptied. The first screamer had seen a rat.

A definition of Court room: A place where a dime's worth of justice may be had for a dollar's worth of law.

Why is a horse like molasses candy? Because the more you lick it the faster it goes.

A lady was asked by her servant about the nature of the next world, and whether it would be just like this. The lady, being blessed with a happy family of seven children, has a skeleton in the house in the shape of a stocking basket that never gets empty, and at whose side she has spent many a midnight hour in darning. With this spectre before her eyes, she replied playfully: "I don't think we shall be required to darn stockings after midnight!" "Sure, that's thru for you, mum, for all the pictures of angels I've ever seen were barefooted."

The following anecdote used to be related by the late William Hazlitt. He was out visiting Mr. and Mrs. Basil Montague, when Sir Anthony Carlisle came in, apparently in a state of more than his usual self complacency, having just received a complimentary testimonial from the Apothecaries' Hall. In answer to the inquiries of Mrs. Montague, he said, very pompously and somewhat profanely, "Madam, the glorious Company of the Apothecaries praise me!" "But," retorted Mrs. Montague, "what say the noble army of martyrs, your patients?" Sir Anthony was so nonplussed by this witty rejoinder that he somewhat suddenly took his leave.

In the course of a recent lecture on "Congregational Psalmody," the Rev. Dr. Allan noticed some of the incongruities that used to occur by the awkward divisions in repetition lines. For instance, "Love Thee better than before" was divided, "Love the better;" "My poor polluted heart" became "My poor pollute;" "We'll catch the fleeting hour" was sung "We'll catch the flee-;" "And take Thy pilgrim home" became "And take thy pil-;" "And in the pious Hezekiah's" was sung "And in the pi-;" and in the "Hosanna" and "Send down salvation from on high" became "Send down sal-." A soprano in one case sang "Oh, for a man," and the chorus responded "Oh, for a mansion in the skies." In one case the soprano modestly sang "Teach me to kiss;" the alto took up the strain "Teach me to kiss," while the bass murdered it quite prosaically by singing "Teach me to kiss the roc-."

A fashion editor reports that the new corsets have a hurricane deck, a bell tower, signal lights, birds of paradise, quail, Wilson's plovers, and flower gardens ad libitum.

THE COLORADO SPRINGS GAZETTE AND EL PASO COUNTY NEWS.

Official Paper of El Paso County.

APRIL 17, 1875

THE LOCAL PAPER. You owe it to yourselves to rally liberally to its support, and exact from it as able, high toned a character as you would do from any educator in your midst. It is in no sense beneath notice and care, for it is your representative. Indeed, in its character, it is the summation of the importance, interest and welfare of you all. It is the aggregate of your consequence, and you cannot ignore it without miserably depreciating yourselves. New York Times.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

A cross on the wrapper of the GAZETTE signifies that the subscription has expired, and that the paper will be stopped. Those who wish it to be continued are requested to renew their subscriptions as soon as they see the cross.

Few things would contribute more to the prosperity of El Paso County than a good improvement of the road between this place and Ute Pass. There is a good deal of travel and much business done between the Pass and the mouth of the Arkansas, which would be very much facilitated by such improvement. It is almost impossible, with the roads as they now are, to induce capital to venture into the business of hauling over them. We understand that the Pass road is to be improved this year, and we hope that the work will be begun at the best end of the road, and be carried on with such vigor as will insure its speedy completion. When the work of improvement on the road is begun, we hope it will be carried up the Fountain valley to Colorado City, and down the valley to the Arkansas River. The travel would then be very much increased, and the benefit to the people of this county would be very great. We hope the Pass road will be put in good condition this season.

Within the period that has elapsed since the founding of the town of Colorado Springs, not a month has passed that has not witnessed a steady progress toward its present position as the second town in the Territory, second not only in population, but in the magnitude of its business and wealth of its people. Though the outlook has always been encouraging, it is more so now than ever.

At no time in the history of the town have so many buildings been under course of erection; at no time have the new improvements been of a permanent character. A score or more of substantial brick dwellings are now going up in different places, besides a large number of frame houses, many of them models of architectural neatness. In addition to these, we know of fourteen brick and stone stores that are under contract, several of which are to be larger and finer than any that have hitherto been built. Among the new stores are four that are to have handsome and costly iron fronts, something decidedly new in the history of our growth. Upon making inquiry, we find that, in spite of the rapidly increasing number of our houses, the increase in our population is fully keeping pace therewith. A prominent real estate agent informed us a few days since that he has but one house, a very inferior house, left on his rent list, and that there is now an active demand for good dwellings. We also learn that tenants have been secured in advance for most of the stores now under contract.

Under these circumstances there is no reason to doubt that we are outstripping the work of building up a town. It is true that citizens of a much older country are asking what there is here to support a town, for this question has been asked every day for the past three years, and we find there is now only the sound of the hammer and the rattle of the passing vehicle to answer the inquiry. The same question could be asked of Denver, but it does not bear upon its face. It is said that the city of Denver has doubtless shared the fate of Colorado City, and stagnated each other in the same way. We propose to answer the question for Colorado Springs, and we do it with the assurance that we can do so satisfactorily.

What is the reason why Denver has not been a place, this is the question. Well, there is a good deal of difference between the two places. Water flows through the streets of Denver, and in the vicinity of Colorado Springs there is not a drop of water for miles. Denver is the point of concentration for a long way in the direction of the Rocky Mountains, and the Territory of Colorado has been retarded in its growth by the fact that Denver has grown so much faster than the Territory. Denver is the point of departure for a great portion of the Rocky Mountain system of Colorado, and has been retarded in its growth by the fact that the Territory has not been able to keep pace with it in population and wealth, relatively speaking. We believe that in a few years, when the passes in the mountains, from Canada on the north to Mexico on the south, large and wealthy towns and cities will eventually exist. The name of this county is suggestive of the advantage of its location.

In such States as Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin, where Nature has thrown up no physical impediments in the way of the building of towns in any locality, the rapid prosperity of almost every town and city is constantly menaced by the growth of rivals near by, produced by the formation of new natural centres. Many towns in those States are no larger and not so populous as they were ten or twenty years ago, although the population of the country generally around them has vastly increased. For the reason that we have already given, we believe that our town is comparatively free from such dangers, and that there is nothing in the present outlook that should inspire us with any feeling other than confidence.

These are the things that have emboldened us to build up a town here, and will continue to stand us in our efforts to make it a large and prosperous one. Let us resent ourselves to that end, not by throwing obstacles in the way of the growth of other communities, but by doing all we can for ourselves, and heartily uniting with our sister towns in the laudable work of making our Commonwealth all that we wish our Commonwealth to become,—a state of the first magnitude in the glorious constellation of the Union.

FARM AND GARDEN.

NOTES FOR APRIL.

By an Old Settler.

This is a busy month for the tiller of the soil. Where wheat and oats are not already sown, it should be done at once. Irrigating ditches should be put in good repair, so as to have a plentiful supply of water. There is but little time to spend now outside of the crop for any other work, but when it is absolutely necessary, deal with all possible despatch and return to your planting.

Corn ground may be planted at any time; some recommend planting about the middle of the month, but from my experience and observation I would recommend no one to be in planting till the 25th. It is much better to plant corn in rows so as to extend both ways. It is easier to keep the weeds down and allows of a more thorough stirring of the soil, and thereby makes better crops. Perhaps three and a half feet apart, each way, would be about right.

April is certainly the planting month for the Garden. The last week of the month squashes, melons, cucumbers, and beans should be planted. Some would doubtless say this is early, but the writer has found that early planted seeds germinate much better in Colorado. Such have the advantage of the moisture occasioned by late snows and early rains; neither does the ground dry so rapidly as later in the season. It is generally well to plant a fortnight earlier than in the same latitude East.

I would say to every one here, where and is so cheap, to plant his garden so as to cultivate with a horse. By so doing three fourths of the labor will be saved.

Let every one plant all the squashes he can use; besides being excellent for table use, they are decidedly the cheapest feed he can raise for hogs. From my own experience, and that of some of my neighbors, I am of the opinion that hogs can be fattened on them at a profit of five cents per pound net weight. Corn should be fed a few weeks before killing, however, to harden up the meat.

WATER.

By a Physician.

If water is clear and tasteless and "soft," people very generally imagine it is therefore pure, forgetting that it may contain more than a proper quantity of either acid or alkali. We all know that "limestone water" is the most grateful to our palates, though no one likes to wash in it, and nearly every one, when first arriving in this Territory, misses the fresh taste of carbonic acid from the water, while at the same time congratulating himself that the water is "soft."

Nearly every one knows what stone is, and it is very commonly supposed that the trouble some guest is the result of too much acid in the water, and very often people will seek places where they can have "soft water," hoping by this way that the child will escape further trouble or that the adult may escape further attacks of what he calls gravel.

There are, however, two sides to this question, and people need to be reminded that there are two kinds of troubles arising, one from too much acid, the other from too much alkali. The latter, though it is not generally thought of, is really more likely to give trouble than the former, and the water of this part of Colorado is known to be nearly always alkaline. Persons suffering from rheumatism, therefore, or either of the above mentioned troubles, will do well to add a small quantity of some vegetable or mineral acid to the water they drink; citric or tartaric is the best of the former, and a mixture of what is commonly called muriatic and nitric (nitro hydrochloric) is the best of mineral acids. The former may be kept in the house and used freely, but the latter should be kept in a glass stoppered bottle and used in the quantity and at times advised by a druggist or physician.

Fruit, such as apples, peaches, grapes, lemons, and oranges, should be used freely by all of us if we wish to avoid the ill effects of the alkaline water of our wells and springs.

The Experimental Garden is being thoroughed.

Water will be set on in the Fountain about Nine about May 5.

Many fences in town have been improved by being whitewashed.

A large number of persons have visited the Garden during the past weeks.

Mr. Macomber has much improved our streets during the past weeks.

Some of the back yards about town need looking after; they are in a filthy condition.

Freighting seems to be a profitable business, judging from the number of men engaged in it.

The annual election of School Directors will take place in Weed's Building on Monday, May 3.

Work on the France Coal Mine has for the present been suspended, but in a few months it will be resumed.

A Dogs' Burial Ground is located near the Mill Place, and several of the brutes have been buried there.

A fight occurred on Wednesday last, at the depot, between an Irishman and a Chinaman. A wager on was the trouble.

There will be no scarcity of Onions during the coming season, as many acres of them have been planted in this neighborhood.

Mr. W. H. Macomber has purchased of Mr. A. L. Hart and Thomas Gay their property on Nevada Avenue, above Huerfano Street.

The first game of Base Ball of the season was played in Armo Square, on Saturday last, between the Freshman Nine and the Actives. The score stood:—Freshman, 29, Actives, 17.

One of our floating population, in answer to the question how he got such a rose-blooming face so early in the morning, replied that he had run across a cold line the night before in the cars.

W. H. G. Stone, lessee of the Experimental Garden, has received a large assortment of plants for his Green House. All in want of choice flowers are invited to call and inspect his stock.

This evening a theatrical performance will be given in City Hall by the Lovell Dramatic Troupe. The performance will consist of the comical farces entitled "Bombastes Furioso" and "Box and Cox."

The building known as the Fountain Restaurant, which was one of the first erected in town, has been moved from the east side of Tejon Street to the west side, to give place to the brick block of Mr. S. C. Foote.

Dr. N. D. Poinsexter, Prescription Clerk at Mr. Reynolds' Drug Store, received by express a handsome gold headed cane, a present from the faculty of the Medical College which he has been attending at Louisville, Kentucky.

The Denver & Rio Grande Railway Company will carry members of the Republican Central Committee, and others wishing to attend the meeting here on the 28th instant, at the rate of one and one-fifth fare from Denver, Pueblo, and Cañon City, and return.

It is reported that the Kansas Pacific Railroad Company will shortly ask from El Paso County a vote of $350,000 in Bonds, and from Fremont County $300,000 in Bonds, on condition that the K. P. shall build a broad-gauge road from River Bend through Colorado Springs to Cañon City.

There is "a fine opening for a young man"—in this place or there—in one or two places in town. We would respectfully suggest, in the interests of humanity, that some one raise a fence around these openings. A broken limb, resulting from a fall into such places, would subject the property owners of the town to a suit for damages.

The supper, concert, and dance, given by the members of the Musical Union, on Saturday evening last, in City Hall, was quite a success, a large number of citizens being in attendance. The songs by Misses Carrie and Ida Newman, Mr. Macomber, and others, were well rendered, and heartily appreciated by the audience. Nearly every one in the hall participated in the dance, which was kept up until nearly midnight. The amount realized, we understand, was sixty dollars.

Marble season has opened and the boys are happy.

A group house is being erected on Moreno Street, east of Nevada Avenue.

One or two pleasant showers during the past week remind us that Winter is about over.

During the past week one hundred and ten passengers arrived on the Denver and Rio Grande Railway.

During the past week we have received a large number of new subscribers. Chicago sends us quite a list.

A large number of teams are engaged in hauling rock to the numerous buildings now in course of erection around town.

Dr. J. L. Prentiss, one of the enterprising druggists of Cañon City, called upon us yesterday on his return from a visit to the States.

A traveling agent remarked that Colorado Springs was the best cigar market of any town outside of Denver in the Territory.

One year ago last Wednesday the big snow storm commenced, which continued for two days, until over three feet of snow had fallen.

Mr. Thomas Hughes, the new Street Commissioner, is engaged in carting away the dirt that has accumulated in the streets and cities during the Winter.

The concert on Tuesday evening next in Unity Chapel, by Professor Chandler and his class, assisted by Mr. Macomber and others, promises to be a rare treat.

Mr. R. S. Weltmer, of the D. & R. G. Railway, has been engaged during the last week in the arduous work of paying off the employees of that company.

The Town Trustees have reduced the number of night watchmen to one. Mr. Townsend will act alone during the Summer season when there is less danger of fires.

We have just received a large invoice of letter-heads, bill-heads, envelopes, and cards, with which we are prepared to supply our merchants at the lowest living prices.

The First National Bank declared a semi-annual dividend of four per cent. at the last meeting of the Directors, and also added $1,000 of the net earnings to the Surplus fund, making the cash capital $51,000.

We have a number of accounts on our books that have been standing for a long time, and unless they are settled by the first of May suit will be commenced. This is the last warning, and we hope it will be sufficient.

Our hackmen look and dress as fine as a fiddle ready for employment from St. Louis. They will probably be here within a fortnight. A room in the Emma House has been rented temporarily for the storage of the trucks and engine.

One of our citizens was taken by surprise in Denver last week, by a lady throwing her arms around his neck and calling him her cousin. The mistake was discovered just as the kiss was given, and now he talks of going to Denver every week.

Thursday afternoon, a fire broke out in a frame building in Colorado City, from a defective flue. Three buildings were burned before the fire could be checked, causing a damage of about $1,500. The property was owned by Mr. W. J. Baird and the Masonic Lodge.

It would be a good idea for our citizens to form a society to prevent cruelty to animals. Last evening we saw a man unmercifully beating a poor horse that was so weak that it could not pull a light load. Such cruelty is tame as the lower more of a brute than the quadruped.

A tremendous impulse has been given to the southern portion of the town by the fine improvements now in progress in the vicinity of Cheyenne and Tejon Streets. Messrs. Brown & Dickey, in conjunction with Mr. Foote, are erecting on the north-east corner of those streets a block of four costly and beautiful stores, which, when completed, will surpass in architectural finish any building in town. The fronts are to be of iron, with fluted columns, and plate glass window. The gentlemen named should be commended for their energy and enterprise.

NOTES.

We see we quarrel to write on this subject, and shall for a long time to come consider ourselves good authority on all matters pertaining to Real Estate.

A friend of ours wanted a house. Nothing so easy; we go with you, we said. So we visited, one after another, the gentlemen who have "Houses to Let," and then we went first to look at a "Neat Cottage." Did not like that. We started to another quarter, but did not find the man we wanted.

The place seemed small at first, but we took it at once even at a price as a good sized town. (At nine, a. m., it was a village.)

We visited the north end and the south end, the east side and the west side, and began to believe in Colorado as to which is the larger, Colorado Springs or Denver. At four o'clock we concluded that "Triscot" was the place next to the size of this Capital of the Centennial State. Our boots were good when we started, but when we parted the nails on our feet stood out in bold relief and our soles were sore as tried, and we have since consulted a cobbler.

We are indebted to several gentlemen who drive good horses for much aid and comfort in our search. Those who, like ourselves, go the rounds will find the agent a gentleman, ready to oblige, and never waxing short or surly because the houses do not suit.

In the northern part of town we found many large and elegant dwellings, and quite a town by itself is growing up in the valley to the north-east.

There are not over a dozen vacant houses in the town, and no many desirable places for rent. Whether the great number being built will meet the demand a month hence remains to be seen.

NEW-COMER.

BUSINESS MATTERS.

Mr. N. Parrisotti, at the California Fruit Store, has made considerable improvement by repainting the interior of the store-room.

A harness shop has been opened on Huerfano Street by Mr. Oscar Fisher.

Mr. Brush has leased the Emma House of Mr. Charles Weatherby.

Messrs. Burnham & Donavan, at the City Drug Store, have been making improvements in the interior of their building.

In another column will be found the advertisement of Mr. George Luno, Contractor and Builder. Mr. Luno has been in our town for several years, and during that time has shown his good workmanship on a number of buildings.

Mrs. Thornburgh has made great improvements at the Ladies' Bazar, by enlarging the store-room and increasing the stock.

Our Grain Dealers have received a large stock during the past week. On Tuesday last 20 tons of Wet-Mountain Hay arrived, besides several car-loads of Grain.

Twenty tons of Cañon City Coal are daily arriving at the depot.

Messrs. Taylor & Brother have started their Soda Fountain.

Mr. Thomas Wanless has received, during the past weeks, a large stock of Furnishing Goods, Clothing, Hats and Caps, a full of the newest Spring and Summer styles.

The apothecary of Messrs. Moore & Co., on the fountain, is now in running order, and is turning out some very fine work.

Mr. Chas. Reynolds has, during the past weeks, received large additions to his stock of Drugs, and will shortly move into the iron front building now in course of erection at the corner of Cucharas and Tejon Streets.

Mrs. Chapelle has returned from the East with a fresh assortment of goods in her line, such as notions, millinery, ladies' furnishing goods, etc. She makes a specialty of her Circulating Library, which consists of many works of interest. Remember the place—Mrs. Gilmer's old stand, Tejon Street.

Many of the business men of Colorado Springs are displaying an energy and determination to be in the front rank, which constitute one of the heartiest signs in the community and are one of the best guarantees for its prosperity. They are determined to give to the town a commercial standing, and are going about their work with an earnestness that will insure to command success. This is especially true of Mr. D. L. Martin, Dealer in Dry Goods, Ladies' Furnishing Goods, &c. This store was the first store in town devoted exclusively to Dry Goods, and his stock at the present time consists of nearly fifty thousand dollars' worth of Goods. This stock of goods is certainly the largest in Southern Colorado, and consists of Ingrains, Solids, Brusses, besides Rugs, Mats, and Oil Cloths. In the Curtain Department can be found Window Curtains of all descriptions. The Ladies' Dress Goods consist of Percales, Cretonnes, Mohairs, Alpacas, Lustres, Ponjees, Silks, &c. In the Ladies' Furnishing Department are found Ready Made Dresses, Ladies' Underwear, Sashes, Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats, and Hosiery. Mr. Martin came to the Territory in 1861, and for five years was in the Dry Goods business in Central and Black Hawk. In 1866 he moved to Denver, and in June of last year came to Colorado Springs. He now occupies the entire store building on Tejon Street. A visit to his store will repay any of our citizens or any of the residents in the neighborhood, if only to give them an idea of the business going on in the town.

PERSONAL POINTS.

The Denver papers of Tuesday last announce the return of Mr. Charles Mullen from a six months' trip East.

W. S. Stratton came down from Lake County the early part of the week, and reports everything in a prosperous condition in that neighborhood.

Ex-Constable Downing left for a trip to his old home in Michigan on Tuesday last.

Miss Sarah Leecher returned on Thursday last from a two weeks' visit to her relatives on the Divide.

The new President of the Colorado College will arrive about the 1st of May.

Messrs. Tuesley, Felice, and Holmes leave on Monday next for Lake's Park.

Mr. J. P. C. Poulton, of the Mountaineer, left on Thursday last for a tour through Douglas and Elbert Counties.

On Thursday last we had a very pleasant call from Mr. J. R. Cowan, of the firm of Wm. D. Daniels & Co., of Denver. Mr. Cowan is an old resident in the Territory and one of those business men we are at all times glad to meet.

The Presbyterian Sewing School will be held on Thursday evening of next week, instead of Tuesday evening, as at first intended.

T. C. Parrish, of the Central Colorado Improvement Company, has been spending most of the week in town.

Mrs. L. J. Dick has sold her Millinery stock and rented her store to a party recently arrived from Indiana.

Messrs. Freeman & Jones have received during the past week some very fine beef cattle from the South Park.

Mr. Edward Ely, Merchant Tailor, and Mr. W. A. Prior, Dealer in Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods, both of Chicago, are at the Colorado Springs Hotel, with an elegant sample of their respective lines of business. They will remain only until Monday noon, and any one desiring good clothing will do well to call on them before that time.

THE CHURCHES.

The Presbyterian Church is receiving a finishing coat of plaster, and will be very white and fresh for Summer use. The walls will not be dry enough to have services in the church tomorrow, so Rev. Mr. Lowrie will preach in Pueblo, the church there being at present without a pastor.

The Rev. L. M. Sportevant, Jr., (Congregationalist,) of Denver, will preach in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, on Tejon Street, Sabbath morning and evening.

Martha A. Taylor, a member of the Society of Friends, will have services at the Methodist Church on next Sabbath, at 2 o'clock, p. m.

A very pleasant episode in the exercises at the Congregational Sunday School, last Sabbath, was the presentation to the School of a library, consisting of six volumes of new and carefully selected books, the donors being Mr. Ward, Jay, esq., of Chicago, and Mrs. L. M. Gardner, of West Hampton, Mass. The parties making this substantial and timely gift are brother and sister to Mr. Douglas Jay, of this place, through whom the donation was received. Resolutions of thanks to the donors, and of acknowledgment to Mr. Charles Fargo, of the American Express Co., for transporting the books free of charge, were adopted by the School.

The young ladies of the Presbyterian Congregation will hold a singing school in the Church on Thursday evening, April 22, commencing at early candle light. The following gentlemen have kindly consented to take the parts assigned them: Judge G. M. Hart, Pedagogue; Dr. J. S. Anderson and Mr. Irving Howbert, Coadjutors; Rev. J. G. Lowrie, Minister; Frank G. Beattie, Master of Ceremonies. Webster and Worcester will be taken as standards, and a spelling that is authorized by either that is considered correct. No fines will be exacted for misspelled words. The first mistake in spelling shall cause the speller to forfeit his position. An appropriate prize will be awarded the champion who shows down the school. An admission fee of ten cents will be charged, and refreshments will be served in the course of the evening.

The Rev. Mr. Webster will speak in Unity Chapel tomorrow evening on "Greece: her worth and worthlessness."

On Wednesday evening last a large number of citizens attended the Martha Washington Tea Party at Unity Chapel. Tables were strewed around the room, at which checkers, backgammon, chess and other games were indulged in. About half past eight, supper was announced, and a number of young ladies in Martha Washington costume, and from ten to twelve o'clock a pleasant dance took place. All present highly enjoyed the entertainment.

There will be services in the Baptist Church tomorrow morning. Subject: "Faith's Victory."

The Annual Conference of the M. E. Church will be held at Central City in July. Our Methodist friends are looking forward to the meeting of that body with considerable interest, as this is Rev. M. Millington's third and last year here. Rumor says that they will not be disappointed, as the Conference is likely to send them one of the best and most talented ministers in the Territory.

About fifty persons met at Hamilton's Hall on Thursday evening last, to attend the Ice-Cream Sociable, given by the ladies of the Baptist Church. An hour was passed in listening to instrumental and Vocal Music, furnished by Prof. Leecher and Mr. Macomber, after which Ice-Cream and Cake were indulged in. Then followed Charades, and a present taking hat. The entire evening was pleasantly spent, and the hour of adjournment arrived so soon as to take the whole company by surprise.

MANITOU NOTES.

Dr. Ormerms, who is an old resident of Colorado, has located at Manitou, where he has purchased a lot and erected a handsome stone office.

The following guests are stopping at the Cliff House at present: J. L. Lewis and family, Mrs. J. F. Crank, child and nurse, Chas. Fargo and wife, L. C. Weihe, Chicago; Prof. C. F. Gilson, Water Sawin, Massachusetts; Chas. Wright and wife, St. Louis; J. S. Dwyer, Wm. Canaan, Boston; W. S. Morgan, Chas. Wheeler, Montreal; Dr. Ormerms, Denver; F. S. Briggs, Illinois; Jas. Lowry, Iowa; Misses Lucerni, New York; C. A. Dening, W. A. Grange, Albany, N. Y.; A. Kenyon, Fountain; Mrs. Fres, Canada; Mrs. Schultze and nurse, Cleveland.

The Manitou House may now be considered as fully prepared for the Summer season. A few of our citizens drove over to Manitou yesterday, on a visit of inspection, and from the sumptuous dinner served before them by Major R. Hopkins, the proprietor, we are satisfied that the reputation of his Chef de Cuisine has not been exaggerated. This artist, by the way, is the identical one employed by the Kansas Pacific Car Company at the enormous salary of thirty-three hundred dollars per annum, to cater for the Grand Duke Alexis and party during their recent railroad trip over the Western country. The house itself has been thoroughly renovated from garret to cellar, repainted, and re-carpeted throughout. One of the most important improvements made is that to furnish a fine supply of the water. Over four thousand gallons can be supplied daily, and distributed throughout the whole house. That intended for drinking purposes is thrice filtered through tanks packed with alternate layers of gravel and charcoal. The party speaks in the highest terms of the neatness of the entire establishment, and were particularly impressed with the cleanliness and convenience of the pantry and cooking rooms, which contain fixtures surpassed by no hotel in the country. Major Hopkins' reputation as a capable and energetic hotel man is too well established to need special commendation, and his genial qualities as a host are admired by all who come in contact with him.

FIRE COMPANY.

At the regular monthly meeting on Tuesday last, Foreman Wood in the chair, eighteen members being present, the Committee on Uniform made their report, and, after some discussion, a cap, jacket, and belt were selected.

The Committee on Building reported progress, and asked for further time, which was granted.

The following gentlemen were nominated and elected as active members:—Messrs. L. Ludwig, Jas. Barnes, J. F. Base, C. E. Aiken, and W. Standart.

The amendment to the By-Laws—"That nine (9) members shall form a quorum for the transaction of business"—was carried.

Communications were received from the Hose and Ladder Company of Colorado Springs, and from the Babcock Manufacturing Company of Chicago.

A discussion, introduced by Mr. Barrett, on the Fire Limits Ordinance was ended by adopting certain resolutions, which were ordered to be presented to the Town Trustees as the views of the Company upon this important question.

The officers and members of the Company, having arrived at the conclusion that their organization would be incomplete without the appointment of a Chaplain, Surgeon and Attorney, forthwith urged the acceptance of those respective offices upon Rev. C. S. Webster, Dr. C. E. Bissell, and the law firm of Bane & McMorris, who have each accepted the invitation of the Company, in the following letters:—

COLORADO SPRINGS, April 16, 1875.

MESSRS. J. J. WOOD, A. H. BARRETT, J. J. WEBSTER, ET AL.:

Gentlemen:—Your note, tendering the Chaplaincy of the Colorado Springs Fire Company, has been handed me by the messenger.

I thank you for it and have accepted the place.

It gives me pleasure to be associated with you in this capacity.

Yours, Gentlemen, respectfully,

C. S. WEBSTER.

TO THE OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF THE COLORADO SPRINGS FIRE COMPANY, NO. 1.

Gentlemen:—Your obliging favor of this morning, informing me of my appointment as Surgeon to your organization, is duly received. I will meet the duties of the position, and will hear from your private works [illegible] to make the organization [illegible] and pride to our prosperous city.

With many thanks for the honor conferred, I remain, gentlemen,

Yours sincerely,

C. E. BISSELL.

Colorado Springs, April 19, 1875.

COLORADO SPRINGS, April 19, 1875.

OFFICERS OF FIRE COMPANY NO. 1.

Gentlemen:—We have received your communication of yesterday, appointing us Attorneys of your Company. With many thanks for the mark of confidence, we have the honor to report our acceptance.

Yours truly,

BANE & McMORRIS.

BUILDING AND OTHER IMPROVEMENTS.

The addition to the Brown House is being plastered and will shortly be ready for guests.

The School House walls are already nine feet, and seven men are constantly at work.

Messrs. W. H. Weed & Co. have been making a number of improvements at the Pike's Peak Mill. The dam has been put in excellent order and plenty of water is now secure.

The Railroad Company have, during the past week, had a number of men employed in replacing old ties with new ones, from the depot to the south end of Tejon Street.

Mr. Wood already has the lumber on his lot on West Cimarron Street, and will shortly erect a house thereon.

Mr. Isaac Gilsan has put on foundation a residence on Sawatch Street.

Mr. Monroe has the frame work up for a residence on Sierra Madre Street.

Mr. N. S. Crowton and Mr. A. Leecher have commenced the erection of two stone buildings, thirty-five feet square, on Huerfano Street, just east of the Emma House. This will fill a vacant lot on that street and add to the business of that street.

The brick building on Tejon Street, above Pike's Peak Avenue, being erected by Mr. Thomas Wanless, will, when finished, be a great addition to the town. It will be two stories high, and built to correspond with the corner block.

Several men are actively engaged on the foundation of the stone building on Tejon Street, next to D. L. Martin's dry goods store.

On the lawn in front of the High School room, on Cascade Avenue, the pupils of the High School and some of their friends have instituted what they are pleased to term a gymnasium. There is a swing arranged especially for the exercise of athletes, the rings of which are about six feet from the ground. Swinging by holding to these rings alone for support is very hearty exercise, as it throws the shoulders back and fills the lungs open. But in addition to swinging, some of our young athletes turn a complete summersault both forwards and backwards while [illegible] in the air. There is also an additional rope to the swing, consisting of an additional rope with hooks at the ends to fasten into the rings, by means of which a seat-board is suspended below. This is for those who are not stout enough for the more violent hand and arm exercise. By standing on this seat-board and bending the legs and the body at the proper time a person, if a strong, may "work up" to the height of fifteen feet, and come out of the swing with the blood coursing through his veins with more than its usual vigor. In this shape a so the swing is very well adapted for swinging ladies to their hearts' content, and the young ladies of the High School are very fond of this exercise. Close by the swing are erected very substantial supports for a horizontal bar. This bar can be put in at a height of four feet, and raised by degrees to seven feet. On this the young gentlemen turn all manner of summersaults; and from it they suspend themselves either by feet or legs or hands. Many invalids who are here for their health resort thither, and seem much benefitted by the exercise in which they indulge.

NEW ENTERPRISE.

It will give pleasure to many we are enabled to announce the formation of a Joint Stock Company in this place for the manufacture of Plaster of Paris, and for other purposes.

The Capital Stock of the company is twenty thousand dollars ($20,000); this has been taken up, and the company duly organized by the election of the following officers and directors:

D. Russ Wood, President.
W. W. Aver, Vice-President.
G. S. Stewart, Treasurer.
J. A. McMorris, Secretary.

The above gentlemen with Major McAlister and R. G. Crawford make up the number of the directors.

It is almost unnecessary to add for the information of those of us who know the men who have started this company, that if success is possible, of which there seems to be no doubt, success will be attained.

All the elements of success, so far as management goes, are in the company. They have the capital, the business knowledge and the industry, which combined, assure success in any business undertaking. They mean business, and there is no stock now on the market.

Not often does a plaster business, that is, a plaster mill with a wonderful apparatus, which is greatly needed, and one that is business, thoroughly and fairly conducted, will be not only a benefit to the grower but to the company. Facts of the power, also, by the chemists, to be of great industries.

The company have acquired a first-rate water power near Colorado City, where they will erect their mill, and the machinery will be put in motion.

The demand is so great that the company will be able to supply the demand.

THE ORTHOGRAPHIC CONTEST.

The Spelling Bee that took place on Tuesday evening last, at the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, was really enjoyable entertainment. Major McAlister had charge of the exercises, acting as enunciator, while Mrs. E. L. Martin and Mr. Douglass were the captains. Prior to the selection of spellers, Major McAlister explained the principles that would govern the exercises. Absolute and technical words would be avoided, and only such as are used by the best writers and speakers. A most every day conversation would be submitted. The first rank were selected from two clusters of "Webster's Dictionary," the second ranked from "Webster's System of Logic," after which some fifty words that have been bringing down good spellers at other "bees" were given out.

Fifteen spellers on each side were then selected, the sides being pitted against gentlemen, and the work of the evening began in earnest. The first miss was made by a gentleman who misspelled "Obeyvencer." A second gentleman was turned in a "Sunbeam." Another went down with a "Sonorous" sound, while our worthy postmaster and a lady closed upon the dark side of "Pessimist." "Sovereign" ruled a lady out, and two good spellers allowed themselves to be bounced by "Colonel," "Emmisary," "Paralelel," and "Democracy" routed two ladies and a gentleman. Dr. A. was too candid a man to know anything of "Diplomacy." A young lady failed in "Business" and didn't quite stand enough to reinstate himself. There was hitting "Delicious" about our worthy friend W. W. A. A lady and gentleman were then turned "pevonet" "Perfection" and "Vicissitudes" of fortune carried down a gentleman who had seen better days, while "Consummate" "Synonime," and "Metallurgy" overcame two or three others. A lady subscribed "subsidery," and another came in fairly to get through "Auxiliary." "Anxious" brought tears to the eyes of a lady and gentleman, when Captain Drew of an and "Prince" called "The Governor's son-in-law" "Suralty," and the complete overthrow of a lady was "facible" to carelessness. "Connotation," "Assassination," "Spontaneity," "Essential," "Wholly," "Tourist," and "Sanitary," put the one or more victims. A gentleman who to his experience a family fortune in restocking himself, gave himself the "Censure" of all evils, and two or three others called "Manuvre" very satisfactorily. At this juncture the "Town Cryer" completely "Surveyed" much to the astonishment of all present, which so overcame his Honor, the County Clerk, that he went into "Satisfaction," like the nymph Egeria when the great Numa "Pompilius" pegged out. One of the best spellers in the room not being so good an artist, couldn't "Ambidexterious," and a lady appeared "Imminent" to the wrong door, as did also judge Lane, and both went down with flying colors, leaving but four, all ladies, to nine them. The entertainment on account of the situation of the latter drove too much for them and turned them all in a minute.

The prize, as usual, was won by a lady. The second prize, a beautiful illustrated edition of Nast's Almanac, going to Captain Ivy.

The spelling lasting till a late hour, was good, the participants mustering with ease a dozen words that slaughtered over half of the best spellers at the great bee held in the Academy of Music in Chicago a few weeks since.

FROM SALVARON.

Spring has at last arrived, and its coming was warmly welcomed by those who have remained here all Winter. The prospectors are beginning to come in, although they can do but little as yet. We are all anticipating a lively times this Summer.

The lodes that have been worked during the last Winter have turned out much better than it was expected they would. The "Aspen" and "Prospector," upon Sulphur Mountain, are paying well, and have yielded a large quantity of ore.

Upon Sulphur Mountain several good lodes are being worked. The "Awakeye" has a shaft sunk about forty feet, and the owners are taking out some very fine ore. The "Kingdom" is looking remarkably well, considering the amount of work that has been done upon it. Some very fine mineral is found at the depth of fifteen feet.

Last, but by no means least, is the "Sunrise." This has not as yet a shaft sunk about sixty feet deep, and has taken ore from the surface. The mineral taken from it is Galena, Gray Copper, and Sulphurets. The last ore taken out gave a return of seven hundred and eighty ounces per ton. The width of the vein is five feet, or thereabouts, and the pay streak is from eighteen to twenty inches in width. This shaft, sixty feet deep, yielded about seventy-five tons of ore. Considering the value of the ore—which averages something over three hundred ounces to the ton—this makes a showing with which but few mines in Colorado can compare.

This Winter has demonstrated one thing, that our mines, even at the present time, when supplies are dear and ore is cheap, will pay, and largely, too. PROSPECTOR.

THE GAMMONS' SPELLING MATCH.

The spelling school fever affected some of the gammons yesterday. They talked it up around the post-office, and a dozen or more adjourned to an alley and stood in a row while one of their number pronounced words "out of his head." "Dog," "cat," "boat," "lemon," and some other words had been got along with, when the word "morocco" came into the teacher's mind. The first boy spelled it "more rock-o," and all the rest followed, and when the teacher filed his demurrer they ran him over a pile of barrels and hit him with frozen potatoes, thus interrupting the harmony and breaking up the school. One of the boys was afterwards heard saying: "What's spellin' good for, any now, unless a feller wants to write poetry?"—Detroit Free Press.

The Longmont people elected an anti-license ticket.

More people are arriving in Denver now than ever before at a corresponding period, averaging fully three thousand per month. The bulk of these are coming to stay, and will locate in different parts of the Territory.

New Goods!

New Goods!

I am now receiving and opening one of the largest and cheapest Stocks of Dry Goods, Notions, Carpets, etc., ever brought to Colorado.

PERCALES, CRETONNES, AND PRINTS.

My Stock of Prints, Cretonnes, Percales, and Camprics, can't be surpassed.

BLEACHED AND BROWN SHEETINGS AND MUSLINS.

My Stock of Bleached and Brown Sheetings and Muslins comprises all the favorite widths and brands, at Bed-Rock Prices.

COTTONADES, JEANS, AND CASSIMERES.

My Stock of Jeans, Cottonades, and Cassimeres, etc., is large, and comprises most anything that is wanted, from a 25 cent Cottonade to a $3.00 English Cassimere.

DRESS GOODS.

My Stock of Ladies' Dress Goods comprises all the New Styles and Novelties that could be found in New York and Philadelphia, were bought and will be sold at popular Prices.

TABLE LINENS, TOWELS, AND NAPKINS.

My Stock of Bleached, Brown, and Colored Table Linens, Towels, and Napkins, comprises every style and quality, and to hotel keepers, boarding houses, and the trade generally, buying for cash in quantities, expect to make offers that will defy competition here or elsewhere.

FANCY GOODS.

My Stock of Fancy Goods, comprising Shaw's, Ribbons, Neckties, Sash-Ribbons, Ladies Silk Mufflers, and Kerchiefs, Laces, Candy Lace, and other Trimmings, were bought with greatest care as to quality, price, and style, and will be sold at prices satisfactory to all.

HOSIERY AND GLOVES.

My Stock of Ladies', Misses', Children's, Men's and Boys' Hosiery and Gloves, comprises everything usually sold or wanted at a first-class Dry Goods Store, and all at bottom prices.

PARASOLS AND SUN UMBRELLAS.

An endless variety of Styles, Qualities, Sizes, and Prices to suit the trade.

HATS.

Ladies and Children's Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats in a full line, with Shades and Sun Lawns for street wear.

WHITE GOODS.

I am opening the largest and cheapest Stock of Piques, Plain, Striped, and Fancy Nainsooks and Jaconets, Swisses, Lisles and Victoria Lawns, ever brought to Colorado.

CORSETS.

Having become satisfied from experience, that a good line of Corsets was needed in this market, I took especial pains to get them. I desire to call the attention of the ladies to my large stock of Corsets, as most favorable makes, and unsurpassed for fit, durability, beauty, and cheapness.

Coraline and White Bone, all sizes	$ [illegible]

CARPETS,

RUGS, OIL-CLOTHS,

Window Hollands, Etc.

Believing a Stock of Carpets, Oil-Cloths, Window Hollands, and Laces should be kept in this market, where people can have the opportunity of selecting Carpets for themselves without the extra expense of visiting Denver to do so, I have bought, and will open in a few days, over my store, a large line of Carpets, Oil-Cloths, Rugs, White and Colored Blankets, Quilts, Bed Comforts, etc., that I expect to sell as low as the same Goods can be bought in Colorado.

I hope to receive a liberal share of patronage, and will endeavor to give satisfaction to all parties who may favor me with an opportunity. Thanks for past favors, I hope to merit a continuance of the same.
